

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to compositions and methods for making a transdermal drug delivery system capable of achieving substantially zero-order kinetics for delivery of the active agent over a period of time in excess of 24 hours and at least 72 hours, comprising a pharmaceutically acceptable active agent carrier and a rosin ester which provides a crystal inhibiting and drug stabilizing effect on the active agents incorporated therein.